About Davis College TEACHING SITES

Davis College offers teaching sites in various locations convenient to homeschool, private school, and adult learners. Christian high schools such as Ross Corners Christian Academy and Loudonville Christian School, and homeschool groups such as the Hudson Valley LEAH Consortium, offer Davis College courses for dual credit to their students. Davis College is accredited regionally by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education and nationally by the Association for Biblical Higher Education.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS: Learners are prepared for college success as they experience accredited courses taught from a biblical worldview. Homeschool and private school students at Davis College teaching sites enjoy significant savings off regular tuition costs. Parents save money as their children secure credits valid towards *high school graduation, and at the same time, can be transferred to Davis College or the college of choice.

**Always verify that your school district or future college will accept transfer credits.*

We are so pleased with the privilege of having Davis College adjuncts at our school, offering Davis courses to our high school students. This is an incredible opportunity offering accredited courses to our high school students. They love the challenge. They also love the fact that they are beginning their college transcripts now. The dual credit for both high school and college has greatly enhanced the excitement of senior year. Some will actually go to college in the fall as second semester freshmen. It is a time saver and very cost effective. Mom and Dad love it!

Accessible - We Bring Classes to You

ADULT STUDENTS: Our flexible schedule allows adult learners to attend classes when it makes sense for their busy schedules. Evening courses meet only once per week. Learners enjoy challenging courses as they pursue accredited higher education taught from a biblical worldview. Qualified faculty will encourage the love of learning through classes offered in local churches for both audit and degree completion.

Why Your Christian School Should Have a DAVIS COLLEGE TEACHING SITE

Davis College has made a significant impact providing college accredited courses for high school juniors and seniors in the Capital region in partnership with Loudonville Christian School, McKeel Christian Academy and the Consortium. These courses have helped students develop a Christian worldview and be prepared to defend and demonstrate that worldview in the secular setting. Students have transferred these courses to colleges and universities around the country as Introduction to Philosophy, World Religions, Biblical Literature and Ethics. It has been my privilege to serve with Davis College for seventeen years and see hundreds of students receive college credits through this program.
